Official Paper of Gila County.

ATTEMPT TO REINSTATE THE TOWN GOVERNMENT.

J. S. Sniffen, acting as special attorney for the late town council, went to Solomonville last Thursday and obtained a writ of certiorari, directed against the board of supervisors of Gila county, and made returnable on the second Monday in June, 1901, to the district court of Gila county. As the board of supervisors took final action on the petition to disincorporate the Town of Globe, and the town is disincorporated; therefore, the only effect of the writ is to take the matter into the district court to have the proceedings of the board of supervisors reviewed.

The act of the supervisors abolished the town corporation and the council in attempting to revive it are acting contrary to law, and laying themselves personally liable to suits for the recovery of every dollar expended of the money in the town fund at the date the town was disincorporated, and for any act performed by them or their agents, which infringes upon the rights of any citizen, or injures them in person or property.

Very few of the statements made in the complaint for the writ of certiorari are true; in fact most of them are glaringly false, and we are surprised that Mr. Hunt would verify them, as he did when he signed the certificate attached thereto, especially, as he has no knowledge of the proceedings of the board of supervisors in the matter of disincorporation, except hearsay information.

Mr. Sniffen's advice to the defunct council as to their alleged duties and authority is hog-wash and the members of that body show imbecility or mendacity, probably both, in accepting and acting upon it.

By the repeal of the ordinances prohibiting women entering saloons they have also proven their hypocrisy, which has all along been so apparent. If they were sensible men, they would know that even if by any focus-pocus of the law the town government could be reinstated, that it cannot be made operative and effective against the wishes of the majority in the community.

A WISE MOVE.

Georgetown, Colorado, business and mining men have commendably adopted a good way in which to advertise the mines of that section. They have incorporated, raised some money and are using the columns of the local paper, the Courier, to weekly present a truthful statement of the showing and output of the mines in that part of Clear Creek county. This is in line with what has often been suggested in these columns and is of practical value. There are so many reasons why such work is good, and they are so manifest that it should be unnecessary to present them. Of course, it may be said that no amount of advertising will put one dollar's worth of ore in the ground, but it will help take out many a dollar's worth of ore that otherwise would remain there and would have up many a mining camp. The Georgetown people are merely putting into execution a realization of the idea that this is the day of advertising, and that anything worth advertising should have it. It would be well if other sections followed the example of the Georgetown people, there is no other one element of more value to local mining industries than the home paper published right where the mines are being developed. Every line of truthful statement so published is of value to every resident; it attracts attention, some of it is republished in prominent mining journals throughout the country, and the district and its claims to notice are thus brought to the attention of mining men and investors. Too little credit is given the local papers published in mining towns of this west half of America for their oftentimes unaided and unappreciated efforts in bringing to notice the mines of their localities, and it would be money well spent for the enterprising business men and mine owners of every town supporting a paper to do what has been done in Georgetown. — Mining & Scientific Press.

"Snare mendacity," to put it mildly, might easily be applied to the present alleged town council in their persistent effort to hold the town incorporation against the wishes of eighty per cent of the taxpayers, in the face of the fact that they "gave their bond," i. e., signed a statement that they would abide by the will of a majority of the taxpayers. Is it "potent interest" or "greedy lust" that causes their tenacity to pose as city duds, an office that should be an "empty honor" only?

The federal judges of Arizona get $3,000 a year each from the federal government. The Arizona legislature has voted them $1,500 a year each of the people's money. The republican papers which are denouncing the extravagance of a democratic (?) legislature should advise these well paid judges to be patriots and show their love of the people by refusing to take this $1,500 a year, which they do not need. They should also advise the republican secretary to be patriotic and not accept the $100 a month of the people's money for a private secretary. Further, they should advise the republican governor to show his great patriotism by refusing to sign these appropriations for federal officials who are getting extra fat salaries already. The salary paid these judges by the general government amounts to about $60 a week. It does seem that they ought to be able to eat three times a day and wear comfortable clothes on the amount. — Prescott Courier.

It seems that no matter how liberal the pension laws or how generous the administration of the pension office, the Grand Army is not to be satisfied. A committee of that organization is now complaining that the late congress and the present administration have done nothing for the poor old soldier. The pension list for the fiscal year 1901 foots up $145,245,230, an increase of more than $7,000,000 in a year, and which amount exceeds the present large expense of maintaining the United States army by $31,000,000. The Chicago Record-Herald's Washington correspondent says: Senator Gallinger, chairman of the senate committee on pensions, asserts that the pension legislation strenuously urged upon the last congress by a committee of the Grand Army would have brought the pension appropriation bill up to the enormous sum of $1,000,000,000 a year. No general pension legislation was enacted at the late session. But a large number of individual bills were passed, and most of them were in cases where the individuals benefited were not able to obtain pensions under the already generous laws. It has become the common practice for pensioners whose claims are rejected for any reason by the commissioner of pensions to appeal to their member of congress, and he usually is able to get them a bigger allowance than they could possibly get under the general law if they were entitled to anything.

A pension is no longer a badge of honor. Men do not get pensions nowadays through congress because they are entitled to them, but because of their political "pull," and next session the same committees will be coming back with the same demands that Senator Gallinger alludes to.
